

Atlantis Release at Gregory Hills

The Atlantis release, featuring 75 ready to build blocks, follows on from the popular earlier release of more than 270 blocks in less than 12 months at Gregory Hills.

The latest stage at one of Sydney's newest masterplanned communities, Gregory Hills, features a great range of regular shaped blocks, many with beautiful district views. Priced competitively from $208,000, the release is conveniently located within Gregory Hills and will enjoy unparalleled access to four parks, including the exciting new Gregory Hills amphitheatre, all within easy walking distance. The release is also only minutes away from the future Gregory Hills Town Centre and the primary school.

The Atlantis release is named after the final NASA Space Shuttle mission. Gregory Hills sits on land donated by Thomas Donovan to the Marist Brothers in the 1920s, and Thomas Donovan was a pioneer of space and astronomy education in Australia and the release is named in honour of modern day space travel.
